O'HAVER MUSES: HE'S THREE SCORE AND TEN

Persons in the vicinity of Second street and Washington avenue Monday afternoon, wondered at the retrospection in the countenance of Capt. George T. O'Haver, former chief of police, new head of O'Haver's detective agency. For Capt. O'Haver stood quite still, and gazed far, far away.

Intimates always know, one time in each year, where George T. O'Haver can be found at 2:20 p.m. on Dec. 22. Right at the corner where he stood Monday.

Seventy years ago Monday the vet eran officer was born in a house at Second street and Washington avenue. Every year since he has grown up he has gone to the corner of his birth at 2.20 p.m., unless he happens to be ab-sent from the city.

FRITZ STILL FAILS TO GO INTO COURT "We are still looking for Fritz Sodini and will arrest him if we are able to find him.

This statement was made at the office of the United States marshal Tuesday morning. Fritz Sodial was convicted at the November term of federal court for relocation of the wardine prohibition law and when called for sentence Saturday failed to appear. His attorney stated that he was out of the city but would return during this week. His bondsmen. John Vaccaro and Joe Gemignami reported to the court that they would have him in court Monday. He failed to appear. Sodinis bond was ordered forfeited Saturday in the wartime prohibition case. He is also under bond in federal court in another case, having been convicted for conducting a retail liquor business without a revenue license. The conviction rendered in the court was affirmed last week by the circuit court of appeals.

Sodini is under $500 bond in the state courts to answer a charge of violating the liquor law. He was arrested on Nov. 21, at Lenox station on the Louisville and Nashville railroad by M. W. Palmer, deputy sheriff with a car of fiquor. His bondsmen in that case are Joe Raffanti and Joe Gemignani.

Some officials and former acquaintances of Sodini express the opinion that he has left Memphis and will not return. Only one of his bonds has been ordered forfeited so far.
